MODEL UNITED NATIONS NETS BOULDER STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP

MISSOULA--

Anna Moody, a senior at Jefferson High School in Boulder, earned a $350 scholarship for her performance during the 32-annual Montana Model United Nations held Nov. 25-26 on The University of Montana-Missoula campus. Moody was one of 20 students selected for the award during the event, which was attended by 350 students from 19 schools across the state.

During the Montana Model United Nations, students presented and debated resolutions they had researched about international topics -- everything from banning the production and storage of biological weapons to ending Thailand's sex trade. They also took part in an International Court of Justice, which weighs cases just as a court would, and took in presentations by community members, UM professors and international students attending UM.

Moody will receive the scholarship if she elects to attend UM. The countries her school was assigned to study for MMUN were Guatemala, Kuwait, Nigeria, Zaire and the Russian Federation.
